

Television:

An electronic device used for reproducing images and sound, mainly used for entertainment or informational purposes.

- Brand: The company that is responsible for producing the completed television.
- Size: The diagonal distance from one edge of the television screen to the other.
- Resolution: The amount of pixels (width x length) the television panel contains.
- Refresh Rate: The frequency at which the television screen displays a new image (in hertz).
- Panel Type: The type of technology the television screen uses, examples include Twisted Nematic (TN), Vertical Alignment (VA), and In-Plane Switching (IPS).
- Price: The Manufacturer Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) of the television.

Song:

A released audio recording of composed music recorded in a time frame that is performed by an artist and is made for voice and instruments.

- Artist: an individual or group of members who perform songs.
- Album: A collection of audio recordings composed by the artist..
- Year: The date that the song is released.
- Time Length: The length of time of a song goes for, typically in minutes.
- Track Number: The song number according to the album.

Professor:

A person who teaches others at the highest level of education. They generally tend to teach at universities and tend to teach in the subject they studied themselves.

- First name: the given first name of that person
- Last name: their inherited family name
- Degree: the highest level of education that they received
- StartDate: the date they first became a professor
- Subject: the topic they wish to teach to others
- University: the campus where they are employed